

CONTENTS

The Editor/Translators Forward	vii
Chapter One: The State and Peoples of the USSR in the Great Patriotic War (1941-1945)
The USSR in the Prewar Years. The Non-Aggression Pact between the Soviet Union and Germany. 23 August 1939. 1 September 1939. The Soviet-Finnish War (November 1939 to March 1940). The USSR and the Baltic states. Soviet-German relations on the eve of the war.	3
The Beginning of the Great Patriotic War. On the eve of the war. The beginning of the war. The forces and plans of the sides. The failure of the Red Army in the summer and fall of 1941. The Battle of Moscow.	7
The German Offensive of 1942 and the Prerequisites for the Turning Point. The situation at the front and the plans of the two sides. The German offensive in the summer of 1942 and the beginning of the Battle of Stalingrad. The German occupation regime. The underground partisans' movement. The formation of the anti-Hitler coalition. The results of the war's first stage.	11
The Soviet Rear in the Great Patriotic War. Soviet society in the first period of the war. The social and economic prerequisites for the turning point. Education and science in the war years. Cultural figures and the front. The church in the war years.	16
The Turning Point in the Great Patriotic War. The Battle for the Caucasus. The beginning of liberation. The Battle along the Kursk Salient. The Teheran Conference. The results of the second period of the war.	19
The Peoples of the USSR in the Struggle against German Fascism. The multinational Soviet people on the war fronts. The economy of the union republics during the war years. The national movement in the war years. The nationalities policy.	23
The USSR in the Final Stage of the Great Patriotic War. The strategic situation at the beginning of 1944. The Ten Blows of Stalin. The Crimean (Yalta) Conference. Europe's liberation of Fascism. The Potsdam Conference. The USSR's entry into the war with Japan. The results of the Second World War.	26
Conclusions and Observations	30

Bibliography	31
---------------------	----

Chapter Two: The USSR in the Early Postwar Years (1945-1953)

The Foreign Policy of the USSR and the Beginning of the Cold War. The USSR in the postwar world. The beginning of the Cold War. The formation of the Socialist Camp. The Party and the Communist movement. The Korean War.	33
--	----

The Socioeconomic Development of the USSR between 1945 and 1953. The economic consequences of the war. The debate on the economy. The IV Five-Year Plan. The postwar village. The development of the Motherland's science and technology. The everyday life of a Soviet citizen.	37
---	----

The Political Development of the USSR, 1945-1953. The war's influence on political attitudes. Changes in the political system. The tightening of the political regime. Church and state.	42
---	----

The Nationalities Policy. The peoples of the USSR in the struggle for the country's restoration. The influence of the war on the growth of national self-consciousness. The nationalist movements. Tightening the nationalities policy.	46
--	----

The Intellectual Life of Soviet Society. The struggle against "western influence" in culture. Literature. Theater and film. Music. Education. Academic debates.	49
--	----

Conclusions and Observations	53
-------------------------------------	----

Bibliography	54
---------------------	----

Chapter Three: The Construction of the Economic Foundations of an Industrial Society in the USSR (1953-1964)

Changes in the Political System, 1953-1964. The struggle for power after Stalin's death. The Rehabilitation at the XX Party Congress. The Third Program of the Communist Party (CPSU, KPSS). The concept of a state for all the people. The Constitutional Project. The October Coup.	55
--	----

Changes in the Socioeconomic System, 1953-1964. Malenkov's economic program. Khrushchev's agricultural policy. Industrial development. The scientific-technological revolution in the USSR. Social policy.	60
---	----

The Evolution of the Nationalities Policy. The destalinization of society and revival of the national movements. The rehabilitation of the repressed nationalities. The expansion of the union and autonomous republics' rights. The completion of the formation of the national elites. The flowering of the multinational culture.	65
The Intellectual Life of the Country from the Mid-50s to Early 60s. The beginning of the thaw (ottepel') in intellectual life. The Arts. The renewal of the system of ideological control. Church and state. Education.	68
The Foreign Policy of the USSR, 1953-1964. From confrontation to peaceful coexistence. The beginning of the dialogue with the West. The beginning of the crisis in the world socialist system. The USSR and the Countries of the Third World. The results of the foreign policy of the 50s and beginning of the 60s.	72
Conclusions and Observations	76
Bibliography	77
 Chapter Four: The USSR from 1964-1982. The Crisis in the Social, Economic, and Political Systems
The Political Development of the USSR. The growth of conservatism. L.I. Brezhnev. The growing role of the military-industrial complex. The concept of developed socialism. The USSR's 1977 Constitution.	79
The Socioeconomic Development of the USSR from the Mid-60s to the Mid-80s. The debate on the economy in the first half of the 1960s. The agricultural reform of 1965. Kosygin's reform of industry. The achievements of Soviet science and technology. The special features of the social policy. The daily life of a Soviet person.	83
The Intellectual Life of Soviet Society from the 1960s to early 1980s. The crisis in the official ideology. The dissidents' movement. The intensification of the struggle with "bourgeois" culture. Opposition to the development of art. The educational system.	87
The Nationalities Policy and the National Movements. The successes of the Soviet federation. "The New Historical Community." The rise of antagonism between the center and republics. The national movements. The evolution of the nationalities policy.	91
The Foreign Policy of the USSR from the mid-60s to the mid-80s. The international situation in the mid-60s. Relations with the West. The Helsinki

Accords. Regional conflicts. The war in Afghanistan. The USSR and the crisis in world socialism. The CPSU and world Communist movement.	95
Conclusions and Observations	99
Bibliography	100
Chapter Five: The Reform of the Soviet System (1985-1991)
The Prerequisites for and Beginning of Perestroika. The prerequisites for the basic reforms. Iu.V. Andropov. The beginning of change. M.S. Gorbachev. The acceleration of the socioeconomic development of the country. The campaign against alcoholism. The New Edition of the Party Program.	101
Economic Reforms: From the Command Economy to the Market System. Economic development in 1985-1986. The economic reform of 1987. The social aspects of the reform. The preparation of the plans for the transition to the market. The causes of the reforms' failure.	104
The Changes in Intellectual Life. The policy of Glasnost'. The reexamination of the historical past. The beginning of the rehabilitations. The inconsistent development of the arts. The role of the mass communications media in the "revolution of minds."	109
Reform of the Soviet Political System. The Cadre Revolution. The political reform of 1988. The birth of the multiparty system. The state and church.	113
The Nationalities Policy and Relations with the Nationalities. The Fall of the USSR. The democratization of society and the nationalities issue. The conflicts between the nationalities and the formation of the mass national movements. The elections of 1990 in the union republics. The preparation of a new union treaty. August 1991 and its consequences. The fall of the USSR.	119
Foreign Policy. The "New Political Thinking." Soviet-American relations: The beginning of nuclear disarmament. The fall of the socialist system. Relations with Third World countries. The results and consequences of the New Thinking.	122
Conclusions and Observations	126
Bibliography	127

Chapter Six: The New Russia

Sources of Russia's New Statehood. The crisis and beginning of the Soviet system's collapse. The democratic elections of the People's Deputies of the RSFSR. Russia's Declaration of State Sovereignty. The first President of Russia. The August Crisis. The fall of the USSR.	129
Political Development after the Soviet Union. The social and political situation in the country after the fall of the USSR. The preparation of the new constitution. The political crisis of 1993. The Russian Constitution of 1993. Politics in the second half of the 1990s. The center and the regions. The Chechen War. President V.V. Putin. Political reforms, 200-2005.	133
Economic reforms. The economic policy of E.T. Gaidar. Economic policy between 1993 and 1998. The consequences of the economic reforms. The economic and social sphere of the country at the beginning of the 21 st century.	139
The Intellectual Life of Russian Society. The character of the changes in intellectual life. Literature. Cinematography. Music. Theater. Graphic art. Mass communications media. Religion and the church.	142
The Foreign Policy of the Russian Federation. Changes in the geopolitical position of Russia and the formation of a new foreign policy. Russia and the West. Russia and the East. Russia and the CIS. New threats and the correction of the foreign policy at the beginning of the twenty-first century.	147
Bibliography	150
Chapter Seven: Conclusion	153
List of Primary Sources for Study and Comment	155